3 CHIEF JUSTICE ROBERTS: The Court will hear
4 argument first today in case 06-278, Morse vs.
5 Frederick.

6 Mr. Starr.

7 ORAL ARGUMENT OF KENNETH W. STARR

8 ON BEHALF OF THE PETITIONERS

9 MR. STARR: Mr. Chief Justice, and may it
10 please the Court:

11 Illegal drugs and the glorification of the 12 drug culture are profoundly serious problems for our 13 nation. Congress has so recognized, as has this Court, 14 time and again. The magnitude of the problem is 15 captured in the amicus brief, the Court has a number of 16 amicus briefs before it, but the amicus brief of General 17 McCaffrey, Secretary Bennett, and a number of 18 organizations. And particularly, pages 5 to 9 of that 19 brief, the nature and the scope of the problem are 20 well-captured.

21 JUSTICE KENNEDY: Well, is this case limited
22 to signs about drugs? What is the rule that you want us 23 to adopt for deciding this case?

24 MR. STARR: The rule the Court -- that it 25 articulated in Tinker. The rule of the Court as

1 articulated in Tinker is that there is, in fact, a right
2 to political speech subject to disruption, requirements
3 that the speech not be disruptive.

4 JUSTICE KENNEDY: Disruptive of what?
5 Disruptive of the classroom order? There was no 6 classroom here.

7 MR. STARR: Including but not limited to.
8 This was a school authorized event, this was education
9 outside of the classroom. It was essentially a school 10 simply out of doors. It was essentially --

11 JUSTICE SOUTER: Well, I can understand if 12 they unfurled the banner in a classroom that it would be 13 disruptive, but what did it disrupt on the sidewalk?

14 MR. STARR: The educational mission of the 15 school.

16 JUSTICE SOUTER: No, but I mean, that's at a 17 level of generality that doesn't get us very far. I 18 mean, what specifically did it disrupt? Did it disrupt 19 the parade, did it disrupt teaching, what was it?

20 MR. STARR: 5520, a school policy of the 21 board that says emphatically that political speech is 22 protected, embracing Tinker.

23 JUSTICE SOUTER: Then if that's the rule, 24 the school can make any rule that it wants on any 25 subject restrictive of speech, and if anyone violates

1 it, the result is, on your reasoning, it's disruptive 2 under Tinker.

3 MR. STARR: Not at all. I think that in 4 form --

5 JUSTICE SOUTER: Then I'm missing the 6 argument.

7 MR. STARR: The argument is that this Court
8 in Tinker articulated a rule that allows the school 9 boards considerable discretion both in identifying the 10 educational mission and to prevent disruption of that 11 mission, and this is disruptive of the mission --

12 JUSTICE KENNEDY: Well, suppose you have -- 13 suppose you have a mission to have a global school. Can 14 they ban American flags on lapel pins?

15 MR. STARR: Absolutely not, because under 16 Tinker that is political expression. Let me be very 17 specific. This case is ultimately about drugs and other 18 illegal substances.

19 JUSTICE GINSBURG: So if the sign had been 20 "Bong Stinks for Jesus," that would be, and Morse had 21 the same reaction, that this was demeaning to the 22 Olympics and it was unruly conduct, that there would be 23 a protected right under Tinker because the message was 24 not promoting drugs?

25 MR. STARR: She stated in her answers to 1 interrogatories that she may very well not have 2 interfered with the banner had it in fact said legalize 3 marijuana. Under our theory, we think she could have 4 interfered with that because it was disruptive to the 5 event, it was disorderly to the event itself, but the --

6 JUSTICE SOUTER: What would be disorderly?
7 I don't understand this disorder. If somebody holds up
8 a sign and says change the marijuana laws, why is it 9 disruptive of anything, simply because the school quite 10 naturally has said we support the enforcement of the 11 law, and the law right now does forbid the use of 12 marijuana.

13 MR. STARR: I --

14 JUSTICE SOUTER: It's political speech, it 15 seems to me. I don't see what it disrupts, unless 16 disruption simply means any statement of disagreement 17 with a position officially adopted by the school. Is 18 that what you mean by disruption?

19 MR. STARR: No. Your Honor, first of all,
20 this is, I think, an unusual characterization, namely 21 for this to be called political speech. We would --

22 JUSTICE SOUTER: If it's calling -- I mean

24 MR. STARR: We think it's a First -- I'm 25 sorry.

1 JUSTICE SOUTER: A call for a change in the 2 law, I would have supposed, was political speech.

3 MR. STARR: That wasn't the interpretation.
4 Your Honor, let's back up, if I may. Someone has to 5 interpret the message and the front line message
6 interpreter is the school official. The school official 7 --

8 JUSTICE SOUTER: Well, that may be, but 9 that's not the hypo. The -- the hypothetical is, what 10 if there is a sign or a statement in the school calling 11 for a change in, you know, the prohibition against 12 marijuana use? As a call for change in the law, I would 13 suppose it was political speech. But as I understood 14 the argument you were making, it would still be regarded 15 as an exception, as it were, to Tinker, because it was 16 disruptive. And it was disruptive in the sense that it 17 disagreed with official school policy, which was to 18 enforce the law or support the law as it was. Is that 19 your position on what disruption means under Tinker?

20 MR. STARR: But our -- the answer is no.
21 Because what we are also urging the Court to consider is 22 its gloss on Tinker and Frazier, and also what this 23 Court said in Kuhlmeier. And in Frazier, the Court was 24 very clear, the first three paragraphs in part three of 25 the opinion, in talking about the habits and manners of 1 civility, and inculcating the values of citizenship.

2 That, in fact, is what is happening here. There is an 3 effort of the -- to prevent a message that is 4 inconsistent with a fundamental message of the schools, 5 which is the use of illegal drugs is simply verboten,
6 and we believe that is permitted under Tinker --

7 JUSTICE SCALIA: So you want to get away
8 from a hypothetical then. I don't know why you try to 9 defend a hypothetical that involves a banner that says 10 amend the marijuana laws. That's not this case as you 11 see it, is it?

12 MR. STARR: Well, it's certainly not this 13 case, but --

14 JUSTICE SCALIA: This banner was interpreted 15 as meaning smoke pot, no?

16 MR. STARR: It was interpreted -- exactly,
17 yes. It was interpreted as an encouragement of the drug 18 culture and --

19 JUSTICE ALITO: Are you arguing that there 20 should be a sui generis rule for speech that advocates 21 illegal drug use, or this broader argument that the 22 school can suppress any speech that is inconsistent with 23 its educational mission as the school --

24 MR. STARR: I think that --

25 JUSTICE ALITO: -- defines it?

1 MR. STARR: I apologize. The Court can 2 certainly decide this on very narrow grounds, that there
3 are certain substances, illegal drugs, we would include 4 alcohol and tobacco, that's part of the school's policy, 5 because those are illegal substances which are very 6 injurious to health. And this Court has noted that in 7 Bernonia and in Earls, time and again, it is that these 8 are very dangerous substances and we have a clear policy
9 sanctioned by Congress, and also noted by courts across 10 the country, that illegal drugs are so dangerous that 11 schools are entitled to have a message going --

12 CHIEF JUSTICE ROBERTS: But the problem --
13 the problem, Mr. Starr, is that school boards these days 14 take it upon themselves to broaden their mission well 15 beyond education or protection from illegal substances, 16 and several of the briefs have pointed out school boards 17 have adopted policies taking on the whole range of 18 political issues. Now, do they get to dictate the 19 content of speech on all of those issues simply because 20 they have adopted that as the part of their educational 21 mission?

22 MR. STARR: No, because that may very well
23 be inconsistent with Tinker. Tinker articulates a 24 baseline of political speech is, in fact, protected, 25 subject to --

1 CHIEF JUSTICE ROBERTS: Well, I think that 2 -- I think you're right about that, and I guess my 3 question goes to how broadly we should read Tinker. I
4 mean, why is it that the classroom ought to be a forum 5 for political debate simply because the students want to 6 put that on their agenda? Presumably the teacher's 7 agenda is a little bit different and includes things
8 like teaching Shakespeare or the Pythagorean Theorem, 9 and just because political speech is on the student's 10 agenda, I'm not sure that it makes sense to read Tinker 11 so broadly as to include protection of those, that 12 speech.

13 MR. STARR: This Court has not read Tinker 14 quite so broadly in both Frazier and in Kuhlmeier, and 15 there are a couple of aspects of Tinker that I think are 16 worthy of note. One, that there was no written policy 17 there, so there was an issue of standardless discretion 18 being exercised. And also --

19 JUSTICE GINSBURG: But it may have made a 20 difference in Tinker. If the school had a policy, 21 defend our troops in Vietnam, would that have brought 22 this into the category that you are now carving out?
23 You said that Tinker had no policy, but suppose the 24 school did have a policy, patriotism, we support our 25 troops, no bad speech about the war in Vietnam. Should

1 Tinker have come out the other way?

2 MR. STARR: No, it should not, because there
3 -- I think there are concerns with respect to what this 4 Court has identified it is trying to, even in the public 5 school setting, quite apart from the university setting, 6 to cast a pall of orthodoxy to prevent the discussion of 7 ideas. What is happening here of course in this case, 8 it can be decided very narrowly, that drugs, alcohol and 9 tobacco just have no place in the schools. And --

10 JUSTICE KENNEDY: Yes, but the rule you 11 proposed, I thought, in response to my question is that 12 the school has wide discretion to define its educational 13 mission and it can restrict speech that's inconsistent 14 with that mission.

15 MR. STARR: And that's what this Court in --

16 JUSTICE KENNEDY: And it seems to me that's 17 much broader than Tinker. Now you said, well, there is 18 an exception for political speech. Well, but then 19 you're right with Justice Ginsburg's hypothetical, let's 20 suppose that they have a particular view on a political 21 issue, No Child Left Behind, or foreign intervention and 22 so forth.

23 MR. STARR: Justice Kennedy, the words that 24 you articulated are essentially quotes of Frazier and 25 Kuhlmeier, so there is a broadening of the lens and a

1 restoration, frankly, of greater school discretion in 2 those two cases than one might see in Tinker. They of 3 course drew, as you well know, from Justice Black's 4 warning in dissent of Tinker that the Federal courts,
5 Federal judiciary should not be extending itself unduly 6 into the work of the school boards' --

7 JUSTICE SCALIA: Why do we have to get into 8 the question of what the school board's policy is and 9 what things they can make its policy? Surely it can be 10 the -- it must be the policy of any school to discourage 11 breaking of the law. I mean, suppose this banner had 12 said kill somebody, and there was no explicit regulation 13 of the school that said you should not, you should not 14 foster murder. Wouldn't that be suppressible?

15 MR. STARR: Of course. That is not --

16 JUSTICE SCALIA: Of course it would, so --

17 MR. STARR: The answer is yes.

18 JUSTICE SCALIA: Why can't we decide this 19 case on that narrow enough ground, that any school 20 whether it has expressed the policy or not, can suppress 21 speech that advocates violation of the law?

22 MR. STARR: I think it can, but it raises 23 some interesting potential hypothetical questions, what 24 about listening to the voice of Martin Luther King 25 Junior, conscientious objection and so forth. I don't

1 think the Court needs to stray into those areas because 2 here we have a written policy which does in fact respond
3 to concerns about the exercise of standardless 4 discretion.

5 JUSTICE SCALIA: Does it have --

6 JUSTICE STEVENS: Let me just clear up one
7 thing to be 100 percent sure I understand your position.
8 It does -- the message is the critical part of this 9 case. If it was a totally neutral message on a 15-foot 10 sign, that would be okay. You're not saying 15-foot 11 signs are disruptive?

12 MR. STARR: Not inherently disruptive, but 13 in fact -- the answer is yes. We're not saying that

14 JUSTICE STEVENS: And so we're focusing on 15 the message and that's the whole crux of the case.

16 MR. STARR: That's why this case is here
17 because of the message.

18 JUSTICE BREYER: Well, why is that? Why?
19 Why? I mean suppose you go on a school trip, and the 20 teacher says on the school trip, I don't want people 21 unfurling 15 foot banners. I don't care what they are 22 about.

23 MR. STARR: It may very well be.

24 JUSTICE BREYER: We are going to visit the 25 state capital and we are not marching down the street

1 with 15 foot banners. I mean, does the First Amendment 2 say the teacher can't say that?

3 MR. STARR: It does not. But the Juneau
4 school board and 5520, Justice Breyer, allows -- in fact 5 it has a Tinker statement in the first paragraph of 6 5520, which is also, you will not be advocating drugs.
7 And so there is essentially a culture of liberty in 8 Juneau. You don't have to --

9 JUSTICE BREYER: You just said suppose -- 10 why should I not say that? I mean I'm not going to do 11 it, necessarily. But why could I not say, would it be 12 wrong in an opinion to say a school board can on a 13 school trip tell the students they can't unfurl 15 foot 14 banners? Is that a correct statement of the law or not?
15 In your opinion.

16 MR. STARR: In my opinion it is a correct
17 statement of the law. But in response to Justice
18 Stevens' question, the message here is in fact critical 19 because what we know about this case is that, and you're 20 here of course to respond to this case, which has to do 21 with a message that the message interpreter, Deborah 22 Morse, who by the way --

23 JUSTICE STEVENS: It's also critical here to 24 your case that it was a school event. If it, if this 25 had have been two blocks down the street there would

1 have been no objection.

2 MR. STARR: If Mr. Frederick had seen fit to 3 go down Glacier Avenue to J and J's, a popular hangout, 4 there would have been no high school jurisdiction.
5 There may have been elementary school -- but yes. He 6 could have gone, Justice Stevens, to the State capital 7 or anywhere along the ten mile route.

8 JUSTICE GINSBURG: Suppose it were Saturday
9 instead of a weekday.

10 MR. STARR: I beg your pardon.

11 JUSTICE GINSBURG: Suppose it were Saturday,
12 not a school day. And the school children were not 13 required to show up at the Olympic event but were 14 encouraged to and the same thing happened. Would it 15 make a difference that it wasn't in the course of a 16 regular school day?

17 MR. STARR: No. I think it still, under 18 your hypothetical would be school sponsored. But there 19 might be a more difficult showing of disruption or 20 inconsistency with the educational mission. That is 21 what this Court articulated in Frazier and again in 22 Kuhlmeier that the school is able under our policies of 23 federalism and value of federalism and democratic theory 24 to fashion its educational mission subject to 25 constitutional safeguards. And that mission of 1 preventing the schools from being infected with pro-drug

2 messages continues wherever there is school
3 jurisdiction, and that would include on a Saturday field
4 trip or other kind of activity and I think that --

5 JUSTICE SCALIA: Mr. Starr, you -- you
6 responded to Justice Breyer that you think the school 7 could just prohibit the unfurling of 15 foot banners on 8 a trip. Could it prohibit the wearing of black armbands 9 on a trip?

10 MR. STARR: I don't believe so.

11 JUSTICE SCALIA: And if not -- if not,
12 what's the difference?

13 MR. STARR: Because of the potential for 14 disruption, disorderliness in the event and the judgment 15 that is entrusted to --

16 JUSTICE SOUTER: But don't we have to be 17 more specific about the context in determining whether 18 there's disruption? If it's a school trip to an art 19 museum, unfurling a 15 foot banner in front of the 20 pictures is clearly going to be disruptive of the object 21 of the trip. Unfurling a banner in a classroom is going 22 to be disruptive to the teaching of Shakespeare or 23 whatever is supposed to be going on in there.

24 What we have here is the unfurling of a 25 banner on a sidewalk in a crowd with kids throwing

1 snowballs waiting for some -- somebody to run by with a 2 TV camera nearby. And there is a real question as to 3 whether, it seems to me, as to whether it is in a kind 4 of practical, real world sense, disruptive of anything.
5 And if there is such a question, shouldn't the answer 6 favor the right to, to make the speech as opposed to 7 favor the right to suppress it?

8 MR. STARR: Your Honor, the answer is no.

9 We do think that if the test that this Court 10 has articulated which we embrace, looks not simply to 11 "disruption" but inconsistency with what this Court has 12 focused -- this Court's language, the basic educational 13 mission, then surely --

14 JUSTICE SOUTER: All right. Let me, let me 15 follow, actually ask you the same question on -- on 16 that. Because in response to Justice Scalia's question 17 you said certainly that the school has got the right to 18 have a policy that forbids violating the law and calling 19 for violations of the law.

20 Accepting that as a premise, don't we need,
21 before the school may suppress the speech, don't we need 22 at least a statement which is clearly inconsistent with 23 that policy? And if that is so, is Bong Hits 4 Jesus 24 inconsistent with it? It sounds like just a kid's 25 provocative statement to me.

1 MR. STARR: Your Honor, with all due 2 respect, the key is to allow the school official to 3 interpret the message as long as that interpretation is 4 reasonable. You might disagree with that just as 5 Justice Brennan disagreed with whether Matt Frazier's
6 speech was all that terrible. But he said even though 7 it wasn't all that terrible I nonetheless defer to the 8 interpretation of school officials. That's what our 9 educational system is about.

10 JUSTICE GINSBURG: But those were the words 11 and characterizing them as offensive/ but here one could 12 look at these words and say it's just nonsense. Or one 13 could say it's like mares-eat-oats. It isn't clear that 14 this is "smoke pot."

15 MR. STARR: Your Honor, again, Deborah 16 Morse, a conscientious principal, interpreted the 17 message in light of the subculture of the school where 18 drug use is a serious problem. And it was on the spot 19 judgment. We believe that judgment was reasonable as 20 opposed to a judgment reached in judicial chambers, but 21 we know that that was also the judgment of the 22 superintendent and district judge --

23 JUSTICE STEVENS: Is that a judgment clear
24 enough as a matter of law, or is there possible debate 25 as to whether that's a reasonable interpretation of the 1 message? Let's assume it was an ambiguous message.

2 Would we have to accept her interpretation on summary 3 judgment?

4 MR. STARR: Yes, I believe you do. And -- 5 well, that's of course a question for the district
6 judge. And here the judge analyzed the facts in terms
7 of what the individual was trying to say and determined 8 that that is a reasonable interpretation and that is all 9 that is required under this Court's law.

10 I'd like to reserve the remainder of my 11 time. Thank you.

12 CHIEF JUSTICE ROBERTS: Thank you, Counsel.

13 Mr. Kneedler.

14 ORAL ARGUMENT OF EDWIN S. KNEEDLER,
15 ON BEHALF OF UNITED STATES AS AMICUS CURIAE, 16 SUPPORTING PETITIONERS

17 MR. KNEEDLER: Mr. Chief Justice, and may it
18 please the Court.

19 The First Amendment does not require public 20 school officials to stand aside and permit students who 21 are entrusted to their supervision and care to promote 22 or encourage the use of illegal drugs. As this Court
23 observed in Earls, the nationwide drug - drug epidemic 24 makes the war against drugs a pressing concern in every 25 school.

1 JUSTICE KENNEDY: And is that the rationale
2 on which you wish us to decide this case, nothing more 3 broad?

4 MR. KNEEDLER: The Court need not decide 5 anything more broadly than that.

6 JUSTICE KENNEDY: I'm asking what your 7 recommendation is to what our rule should be this case.

8 MR. KNEEDLER: Well, I think this is a 9 manifestation of the principle articulated in Earls and 10 repeated in Hazelwood that a, school does not have to 11 tolerate a message that is inconsistent with its basic 12 educational --

13 JUSTICE ALITO: Well, that's a very -- I 14 find that a very, a very disturbing argument, because 15 schools have and they can defined their educational 16 mission so broadly that they can suppress all sorts of 17 political speech and speech expressing fundamental 18 values of the students, under the banner of, of -- of 19 getting rid of speech that's inconsistent with 20 educational missions.

21 MR. KNEEDLER: That's why I think there 22 would, there would be, it would make a lot of sense for 23 the Court to articulate a rule that had to do with 24 encouraging illegal conduct and particularly --

25 JUSTICE BREYER: Well, why go into this? I

1 mean, that's what I actually, seriously don't 2 understand. Suppose the rule has the following rule:
3 by the way, on our field trips you can carry around 15
4 foot banners. They can say anything. Except they can't 5 talk about drugs and they can't talk about sex and they 6 can't talk about -- I don't know. Or I'd say three 7 things. Would that be constitutional?

8 MR. KNEEDLER: Well -- I think, I think a 9 school could certainly prohibit the display of banners 10 on a school trip or in a school assembly.

11 JUSTICE BREYER: Suppose that this 12 particular person had whispered to his next door
13 neighbor, "Bong Hits 4 Jesus, heh heh heh," you know.
14 Supposed that's what had happened?

15 (Laughter.)

16 MR. KNEEDLER: And that may well -- that may 17 well be different. And that's why I --

18 JUSTICE BREYER: No. What would be 19 different -- that's what I -- what a principal that has 20 to act quickly sees across the street at a school 21 meeting, a big banner go up making a joke out of drug 22 use. So the principal acts.

23 Now, are we supposed to divide that into 24 little bitsy parts? Because as soon as we do we are 25 going to get a rather interesting, complicated and very

1 difficult set of constitutional rules. But you want us 2 to do that.

3 MR. KNEEDLER: No. I do not. I think -- I
4 think the point that you make that a principal sees the 5 banner across the street and sees the word bong hits, 6 and -- and at the very moment when the Olympic torch was 7 about to arrive, I think it was. She made a quick 8 judgment and an entirely reasonable one that the display 9 of the slang words bong hits --

10 JUSTICE KENNEDY: Well, then you're not 11 arguing for the broad educational mission, which is what 12 you said at the first.

13 MR. STARR: Well, there are several 14 gradations that the Court could take: Advocacy of 15 illegal conduct generally; more specifically advocacy of 16 illegal drugs. But I believe -- I think it's important 17 to recognize that this Court's precedents recognize -- 18 recognize several different justifications for 19 restricting student speech. In Tinker itself which 20 dealt with political speech, the Court was careful to 21 point out that even then, if the speech could be shown 22 to present a threat of a material disruption to the 23 class work, and I think this would answer your question, 24 Mr. Chief Justice, if the teacher wants to teach 25 Shakespeare, the teacher doesn't have to turn over the 1 class to political speech.

2 JUSTICE ALITO: But that's a
3 viewpoint-neutral regulation. This isn't, the principal 4 didn't say this was a viewpoint-neutral regulation, did 5 she?

6 MR. KNEEDLER: No. No. And -- and, and 7 just to finish, in Tinker even with a viewpoint concern, 8 the Court said if you could show material disruption, 9 and --- and the Court made that clear in Tinker, by, by 10 its comparison to several lower court decisions where 11 wearing buttons had been prohibited because they had 12 caused disruption. And the third category in Tinker 13 itself was where there would be an intrusion upon the 14 rights of other students to be secure and be let alone.
15 That's Tinker dealing with political speech.

16 But in Frazier and Hazelwood the Court
17 identified additional categories of speech that could be 18 governed by the school, and this is in footnote 4 of 19 Hazelwood. The Court made clear that the ability to 20 regulate those categories of speech goes beyond the 21 question of whether there would be disruption or whether 22 there would be --

23 CHIEF JUSTICE ROBERTS: So -- so you think 24 that the, not a 15 foot banner but a very discrete 25 button that says "legalize marijuana," although it might

1 be covered as not being disruptive under Tinker, it 2 could be inconsistent with the school's mission and 3 prohibited on that basis?

4 MR. KNEEDLER: Well, I think -- I think if,
5 if the button is legalize marijuana during a referendum 6 in the State, then that, that might be the category of 7 political speech that could not be regulated.

8 JUSTICE GINSBURG: And at -- at this very 9 rally, I mean I thought your brief said that it's okay
10 to work for change in existing law which such a sign 11 would be, but it is not okay to violate the law. And no 12 one was smoking pot in that crowd.

13 MR. KNEEDLER: But -- but the, what was 14 happening was a sign that was reasonably construed to 15 encourage the use of illegal drugs.

16 JUSTICE SOUTER: All right. Given the fact
17 that this is a First Amendment case, isn't a court 18 forced into the position if it's going to be consistent 19 with what else we have said, even at the final appellate 20 level, of giving pretty careful scrutiny to the 21 statement itself in determining whether it may be 22 suppressed or punished?

23 And if we do that, is it such a reasonable 24 construction that this is an -- an incitement to illegal 25 drug use?

1 I mean it's a statement which makes, makes 2 the drug law look a little ridiculous, I think, but I'm 3 not sure that that is very distinguishable from a 4 statement saying "you ought to change the drug law."

5 MR. KNEEDLER: Well, I -- I -- I think in,
6 in this Court's decisions dealing with public schools, 7 this Court has, has a consistent theme as to give 8 deference to the judgments by the educators. Public 9 schools --

10 JUSTICE SOUTER: Do we have to give -- let 11 me ask you this. And maybe this is the, as far as we 12 can go with it here.

13 Is that the answer to the question here 14 about what the statement means?

15 MR. KNEEDLER: Yes.

16 JUSTICE SOUTER: In other words, if we give 17 deference your argument wins. But if we don't give 18 deference, then does anybody really know what the 19 statement means?

20 MR. KNEEDLER: I don't think the question is 21 what Mr. Frederick intended. The question is what a 22 reasonable observer would think. And the words "bong 23 hits" are slang that would be particularly, have a 24 particular characteristic of getting across to other 25 student, and they suggest a casual tolerance and

1 encouragement of --

2 JUSTICE STEVENS: What if the sign said
3 "bong hits should be legal?"

4 MR. KNEEDLER: I, I think that would be a
5 judgment call. I think the, I think the casual use --

6 JUSTICE STEVENS: Under your view wouldn't 7 the principal's judgment always prevail?

8 MR. KNEEDLER: Well it has to be a 9 reasonable judgment and this is, this is reflected in 10 Frazier.

11 JUSTICE STEVENS: Is that a question of fact 12 or a question of law?

13 MR. KNEEDLER: Pardon me?

14 JUSTICE STEVENS: Is whether it's a 15 reasonable judgment --

16 MR. KNEEDLER: I think ultimately it's a 17 question of law, whether it's a reasonable judgment.

18 JUSTICE KENNEDY: This, this -- this parade
19 had a theme to celebrate the Olympics, with -- the high 20 school kids are carrying the torch, the band is in it.
21 And suppose the banner said vote for, vote Republican, 22 vote Democrat. And he wants to be on the TV with that.
23 Could this, the principal make him take that sign out of 24 the ground in that it's inconsistent with the whole
25 theme of, of, of the parade? Something like our Kurle

1 case?

2 MR. KNEEDLER: Yes. I -- I mean, I think
3 for this reason. This was essentially an outdoor 4 assembly, where the -- whether the students were 5 assembled to watch a particular different, just as in an 6 indoor assembly.

7 JUSTICE KENNEDY: Is that different from the 8 rationale you've put.

9 MR. KNEEDLER: Yes. Again, that's why I
10 don't think there's any one single rule that governs all 11 cases. This, this I think falls under the Frazier
12 standard, where the Court said that, that schools have a 13 duty to inculcate matters of civility and to prepare 14 students for citizenship, and not violating the law is 15 an important part of that and teachers' act in loco 16 parentis. They act as guardians and they should be able 17 to do, as this Court says in Earls, what a reasonable 18 guardian would do. That would mean don't allow people 19 to encourage lawbreaking.

20 JUSTICE GINSBURG: But it wasn't, it wasn't 21 like an assembly, was it? As I understand it, the 22 children were released from school, but they were not 23 required to attend this event and they were not required 24 to stand in front of the school on the opposite side.
25 They weren't monitored by their teachers, so they -- and

1 there were nonstudents in the crowd. So it's not like a 2 school assembly.

3 MR. KNEEDLER: The students' present at the 4 event, presence as the event, was like an assembly.
5 Students may go into an assembly hall and not have to 6 sit with their class. They were released from class, 7 but they were not released from school or school 8 supervision. There were teachers around there and the 9 school could define what is the nature of our assembly
10 at this public event and, just as in, in the auditorium
11 a school could say there will be no political banners 12 or, frankly, no banners about anything other than what 13 the event is --

14 JUSTICE SCALIA: Were they required to go to 15 this event and could they have skipped off and gone home 16 without violating --

17 MR. KNEEDLER: They were not allowed to go
18 home. They were required, they were required --

19 JUSTICE SCALIA: They were required to 20 attend.

21 MR. KNEEDLER: They were required to be 22 there if the classroom teacher decided to let them go 23 out there, but they were under school supervision at 24 that time.

25 JUSTICE SOUTER: Were they ever told what

1 they were supposed to do in the sense did the school 2 ever say, we are letting you out on the street to 3 celebrate the Olympics and to do only that? Was, was 4 there an object to this release from the school building 5 that was ever conveyed?

6 MR. KNEEDLER: If I may, I don't think 7 there's any question that he knew in advance that this 8 was about the Olympics. That's why he made the sign.
9 And they were released to go out and watch the torch go 10 by. He hasn't raised any question of notice or due 11 process concerns.

13 Mr. Kneedler.

14 MR. KNEEDLER: Thank you.

15 CHIEF JUSTICE ROBERTS: Mr. Mertz.

16 ORAL ARGUMENT OF DOUGLAS K. MERTZ, ESQ.

17 ON BEHALF OF THE RESPONDENT

18 MR. MERTZ: Mr. Chief Justice and may it
19 please the Court: This is a case about free speech. It 20 is not a case about drugs.

21 CHIEF JUSTICE ROBERTS: It's a case about 22 money. Your client wants money from the principal 23 personally for her actions in this case.

24 MR. MERTZ: He does have a damages claim 25 against the school district and the principal, but

1 that's by no means his chief object here. The 2 overwhelming object is to assert his free speech --

3 JUSTICE KENNEDY: Well, would you waive
4 damages against this principal who has devoted her life 5 to the school, and you're seeking damages for her for 6 this sophomoric sign that was held up?

7 MR. MERTZ: We are certainly willing to 8 negotiate a minimum settlement of damages. That is not 9 the object here.

10 CHIEF JUSTICE ROBERTS: But there's a
11 broader issue of whether principals and teachers around 12 the country have to fear that they're going to have to 13 pay out of their personal pocket whenever they take 14 actions pursuant to established board policies that they 15 think are necessary to promote the school's educational 16 mission.

17 MR. MERTZ: That is indeed a legitimate 18 fear, Your Honor, and we believe the existing law takes 19 care of it by requiring before qualified immunity can be 20 breached that there be a demonstration that under the 21 existing law at the time available to her --

22 CHIEF JUSTICE ROBERTS: And you think it was 23 clearly established that she had to allow a student at a 24 school- supervised function to hold a 15-foot banner
25 saying "Bong Hits 4 Jesus"?

1 MR. MERTZ: I think it was clearly
2 established at the time, Your Honor, that a principal 3 could not engage in viewpoint censorship of a 4 nondisruptive expression, under both Ninth Circuit law
5 and this Court's law. The case had --

6 JUSTICE SOUTER: Does that, does that 7 general statement that you just made apply to all 8 circumstances in which a student-teacher relationship 9 might be involved? For example, in the course of 10 teaching a class in Shakespeare would your rule prevail?

11 MR. MERTZ: The rule on qualified immunity?

12 JUSTICE SOUTER: Yes, the general rule which 13 the teacher is supposed clearly to have known here. For 14 example, in the Shakespeare class, kid doesn't, doesn't 15 say anything. He doesn't yell or scream or even raise 16 his hand. He just holds a little sign in the 17 Shakespeare class that says "Bong Hits 4 Jesus." As I 18 understood the general rule that you said the teacher 19 was bound to know here, the teacher I suppose would be 20 required or the school would be required to tolerate 21 that sign in the Shakespeare class; is that correct?

22 MR. MERTZ: I believe the analysis would be 23 the Tinker analysis in terms of substantial disruption 24 of the lesson.

25 JUSTICE SOUTER: Well, would there be a

1 substantial disruption?

2 MR. MERTZ: It would all depend on the 3 circumstances. My guess is that if it were simply 4 passively --

5 JUSTICE SOUTER: If the kids look around and 6 they say, well, so and so has got his bong sign again --

7 (Laughter.)

8 JUSTICE SOUTER: -- they then return, they 9 then return to MacBeth. Does the -- does the, does the 10 teacher have to, does the school have to tolerate that 11 sign in the Shakespeare class?

12 MR. MERTZ: I believe that in circumstances
13 where it is a substantial distraction --

14 JUSTICE GINSBURG: Can't it just say no
15 signs when you're supposed to be learning?

16 MR. MERTZ: Your Honor, I think the answer 17 is yes if they had a content-neutral rule prohibiting 18 signs in school. I believe that would be --

19 CHIEF JUSTICE ROBERTS: But can't the school
20 decide that it's part of its mission to try to prevent 21 its student from engaging in drug use and so that it's 22 going to have a viewpoint on drug use and that viewpoint
23 is going to be that it's opposed to it and so that it 24 takes a particular view with respect to signs that in 25 their view seem to encourage drug use?

1 MR. MERTZ: Certainly it is within the 2 school's mission to discourage drug use. Certainly it
3 has many tools to allow it to get its own viewpoint --
4 certainly it can -- it does not need to provide a forum
5 in the school itself for students with a contrary
6 viewpoint. But when a student is basically on his own 7 time, whether it's outside of school --

8 CHIEF JUSTICE ROBERTS: So your position 9 would be different if this were in the student gym and 10 they were having a discussion. There was a program to 11 discourage drug use and he held up his sign; you would 12 say it would be all right to take down the sign inside 13 the school gym?

14 MR. MERTZ: No, I'm not so sure.

15 CHIEF JUSTICE ROBERTS: So it doesn't matter 16 that this is outside. It matters on the content of the 17 sign, not the location?

18 MR. MERTZ: Well, what matters is whether 19 there is a substantial disruption of what the school is 20 trying to achieve legitimately, whether it's a classroom 21 lesson or a lesson on drug use.

22 JUSTICE SCALIA: Well, but the school has -- 23 the school has a program, an anti -drug program that 24 shows movies, it brings in policemen and social workers 25 to preach against drug use and you're saying that --

1 never mind unfurling a banner. You're saying that it 2 has to let students contradict this message it's trying 3 to teach, to walk around, you know, with a button that 4 says "Smoke Pot, It's Fun."

5 MR. MERTZ: I believe, Your Honor --

6 JUSTICE SCALIA: Does the school have to do 7 that?

8 MR. MERTZ: I believe, Your Honor, that a 9 nondisruptive pin, badge, whatever you want to call it, 10 would have to be tolerated. However, they would not 11 have to tolerate a student who interrupts a anti-drug 12 presentation.

13 JUSTICE SCALIA: But the school, even though 14 it is trying to teach one point of view, can allow 15 students to come in and undermine that point of view, 16 assuming that it's legitimate to teach that point of 17 view? It can allow students to come in and undermine 18 what it's trying to teach?

19 MR. MERTZ: I think that --

20 JUSTICE SCALIA: And that is not disruption
21 in your view?

22 MR. MERTZ: I think they cannot prevent 23 presentation of a contrary viewpoint as long as it is 24 done in such a way that it doesn't interfere with the 25 school's own presentation of its viewpoint.

1 JUSTICE KENNEDY: Can the student be allowed
2 to wear a button that says "Rape Is Fun"?

3 MR. MERTZ: No, I don't think so --

4 JUSTICE KENNEDY: Why?

5 MR. MERTZ: There is a distinction there.

6 JUSTICE KENNEDY: Why?

7 MR. MERTZ: Because when you're talking
8 about hate speech, speech that advocates violence, then 9 you're in another category of speech. There has been 10 general recognition --

11 JUSTICE SCALIA: Nonviolent crimes are okay, 12 it's only violent crimes that you can't, you can not 13 promote, right? Right?

14 MR. MERTZ: I think there is a --

15 JUSTICE SCALIA: "Extortion Is Profitable," 16 that's okay?

17 MR. MERTZ: Well --

18 JUSTICE SCALIA: This is a very, very, with 19 all respect, ridiculous line. I mean, I can understand 20 you're saying you cannot promote things that are 21 unlawful, but to say, oh, it's only violent, where do 22 you get that line from, only violent unlawful acts?

23 MR. MERTZ: No, I'm not saying only violent 24 unlawful acts. But this is a case where if you look at 25 it in the context of what was going on in the State at

1 the time, where there was an active public debate on 2 marijuana policy, on marijuana for medical use, 3 marijuana for personal use, so it's --

4 CHIEF JUSTICE ROBERTS: So it's a political 5 -- even assuming it's a political issue, the question is 6 whether the school has to say our classrooms, our field 7 trips, our sponsored and supervised activities are a 8 forum for that debate?

9 MR. MERTZ: I believe it does not have to if 10 being a forum would disrupt the school's own educational 11 program and --

12 CHIEF JUSTICE ROBERTS: And disruption does 13 not include undermining the message they want to send?
14 It has to be some type of physical disruption. But 15 undermining the message they want to send, they can't 16 make the judgment that that's not allowed?

17 MR. MERTZ: Preventing a contrary viewpoint 18 from being expressed, that we --

19 JUSTICE BREYER: Yes, but you rephrased it 20 that way, but what actually happened is the principal 21 looks across the street, a 15-foot banner goes up at 22 what's supposed to be a school event with everybody 23 together in a single place, and it says a joke, it makes 24 a joke out of drug use. The principal thinks of course
25 adolescents and post-adolescents sometimes like to test

1 limits, and if the kids go around having 15-foot banners
2 making a joke out of drug use that really does make it a 3 little tougher for me to convince the students at this 4 school not to use drugs, and particularly putting up 5 15-foot banners. I don't know why everybody wants to 6 get away from that because I think you would have had a 7 very different case if in fact it had been a whisper or 8 if it had been a serious effort to contest the drug 9 laws. It wasn't either. It was a joke. It was a 10 15-foot banner. We have the message plus the means plus 11 the school event.

12 Now, what's your response?

13 MR. MERTZ: My response, Your Honor, is 14 that, first of all, a 14-foot banner.

15 JUSTICE BREYER: That's an excellent
16 response, I think.

17 (Laughter.)

18 MR. MERTZ: That was just a preliminary. In 19 fact, what it was was a person displaying this banner in 20 a quiet, passive manner that didn't interfere with 21 anybody's observation.

22 JUSTICE BREYER: I conceive that 23 interference consists of it's pretty hard to run a 24 school where kids go around at public events publicly 25 making a joke out of drugs. That's what his thought is.

1 Now, I don't think he has to be able to read content
2 discrimination, viewpoint discrimination, time-place.
3 He doesn't know the law, the principal. His job is to 4 run the school. And so I guess what I'm worried about 5 is a rule that would -- is on your side, a rule that 6 takes your side; we'll suddenly see people testing
7 limits all over the place in the high schools. But a 8 rule that against your side may really limit people's 9 rights on free speech. That's what I'm struggling with.
10 Now, I want some help there and I'm worried about the 11 principal.

12 MR. MERTZ: I believe the answer is that the 13 Tinker case as we understand it struck a very wise 14 compromise between allowing school officials to have 15 complete discretion to suppress student speech in order 16 to maintain what they conceive of as their individual 17 mission and the student's right to speak in a 18 nondisruptive manner. The speaker -- the Tinker case 19 has stood the test of time for 40, almost 30 years and, 20 although --

21 JUSTICE SCALIA: Well, you can say that, but 22 the subsequent cases seem to me to try to cut back on 23 it. I mean, it stood the test of time in the sense that 24 it hasn't been overruled, but --

25 MR. MERTZ: There have been some narrow

1 exceptions to it in subsequent cases, of course, the 2 Frazier and the Kuhlmeier cases. But the basic, the 3 heart of it, the requirement that the school demonstrate 4 that substantial disruption before it can engage in 5 suppression of --

6 JUSTICE SCALIA: I think we're using 7 disruption in two different senses here and we should 8 probably separate the two. One sense is disrupting the 9 class so that whatever is being taught can't be taught.
10 But you're also using it in the sense of undermining a 11 general message that the school is trying to get across: 12 Obey the law, don't use drugs, whatever. Maybe we 13 should have a different word for -- the first is 14 disruption. Disruption is a, is a funny word for the 15 second. Let's called it undermining instead.

16 Now, you think both of them, however, are 17 bad and both of them can be a basis for suppressing the 18 speech?

19 MR. MERTZ: If I understand your question
20 correctly, the second of them might better be called 21 allowing competing viewpoints.

22 JUSTICE SCALIA: So you think undermining is 23 perfectly okay? You would never consider undermining to 24 be disruption and therefore bad?

25 MR. MERTZ: I think undermining in the sense

1 of preventing impeding the school from delivering its 2 own message --

3 JUSTICE SCALIA: Okay, but only that.

4 MR. MERTZ: -- would be substantial 5 disruption.

6 JUSTICE SCALIA: Right after a class on 7 drugs, he can be standing there in the hall and say:
8 This class was ridiculous, drugs are good for you, I use 9 them all the time, I urge all of you. That's perfectly 10 okay? That's not undermining?

11 MR. MERTZ: I believe that is the kind of 12 speech --

13 JUSTICE SCALIA: That's not disruption?

14 MR. MERTZ: -- that we must tolerate no 15 matter how unwise it is.

16 JUSTICE GINSBURG: But couldn't the school,
17 couldn't the school board have a time, place, or manner
18 regulation that says you're not going to use the halls 19 to proselytizer for your cause, whatever it may be?

20 MR. MERTZ: I believe that's correct.

21 JUSTICE GINSBURG: You could have reasonable 22 rules of decorum for what goes on inside the school 23 building.

24 MR. MERTZ: Right.

25 CHIEF JUSTICE ROBERTS: Does the school have

1 to be completely neutral in that respect? Does it have 2 to punish who says that was a good program, I'm not 3 going to use drugs, and you shouldn't either, because 4 he's taking position on a public issue?

5 MR. MERTZ: I think a content neutral,
6 content neutrality is critical here, and if the school 7 wants to allow anti-drug comments, messages, then it has 8 an outside of the official forum --

9 CHIEF JUSTICE ROBERTS: Where does that 10 notion that our schools have to be content neutral -- I 11 thought we wanted our schools to teach something, 12 including something besides just basic elements,
13 including the character formation and not to use drugs.
14 They have to be neutral on whether you should use drugs 15 or not?

16 MR. MERTZ: Content neutrality goes to what 17 speech is suppressed or punished. As far as the school 18 delivering its own message, there is no requirement of 19 equal time or that it be neutral. It's got its own 20 viewpoint in the case of drugs, a viewpoint that almost 21 all of us agree with, and it should be able to espouse 22 --

23 JUSTICE SCALIA: A school isn't an open 24 forum. A school isn't there for everybody to teach the 25 students whatever he wants. It's there for the teachers

1 to instruct. And you're turning it into an open forum.
2 If the school says, addresses one issue, everybody else
3 has to be able to address that issue.

4 MR. MERTZ: I don't believe that's the case
5 at all, Your Honor.

6 JUSTICE SCALIA: That's not my vision of 7 what a school is.

8 MR. MERTZ: In the classroom delivering the 9 prescribed messages, in the school assemblies, when the 10 school wishes to present a particular message, that's 11 one case. However, in the lunchroom, outside in recess, 12 across the street, that is a quintessentially open forum
13 where it would not be proper, I think, to tell students 14 you may not mention this subject, you may not take this 15 position.

16 JUSTICE KENNEDY: But do you concede that 17 there was some right of school control for what was 18 going on across the street?

19 MR. MERTZ: No. Actually our primary
20 position on that is that he was in a public place at a 21 public event among public people --

22 JUSTICE KENNEDY: If kids were throwing 23 bottles and injuring passers by, the principal had no 24 right or duty to go over there and stop it?

25 MR. MERTZ: Oh, I think if they were

1 engaging in an act of hooliganism --

2 JUSTICE KENNEDY: Well, that's because the 3 school has a right of control.

4 MR. MERTZ: There is a distinction here.
5 This young man had not been in school today, had not 6 been an campus, was not in any class that was released 7 to --

8 CHIEF JUSTICE ROBERTS: Why did he go where 9 he went?

10 MR. MERTZ: Pardon?

11 CHIEF JUSTICE ROBERTS: Why did he choose 12 that location to unfurl his banner?

13 MR. MERTZ: He explained because it was the 14 only place where he actually knew the route of the 15 relay.

16 JUSTICE BREYER: But I mean, that's -- I 17 have, I guess his note, you accept this with what the 18 teacher said. The entire class went to view the relay.
19 Individual students -- this is at 9:30 in the morning.
20 They were not given the option of remaining in class, 21 nor were they released to do as they pleased. They were 22 to watch the relay with the rest of the student body, 23 either just in front of the school or just across the 24 street -- that's me, not them -- and then return
25 directly to their classrooms, which I guess the school

1 did. So it sounds like you're going to one place, stand 2 together, behave yourselves, watch the relay, and the 3 teachers will be there and take you back to class. Now 4 is there something else in the record that suggests 5 something different?

6 MR. MERTZ: There is a major dispute on that 7 point, Your Honor. We presented several affidavits that 8 showed individual teachers --

9 JUSTICE BREYER: Just tell me where to look.
10 Where are the conflicting affidavits? I'm just reading 11 from page 51 of the joint appendix. I didn't know there 12 was a dispute.

13 MR. MERTZ: It would be on pages 32, 34, 36.

14 JUSTICE BREYER: Okay, I'll look at those.
15 Another somewhat minor point. Can I ask you another 16 point about the record? I'll read those.

17 MR. MERTZ: Okay. Can I finish the 18 description of what actually happened? According to the 19 students, for those who were released from class, there 20 was no requirement for staying on campus, and many of 21 them did not stay on campus. No requirement for --

22 JUSTICE BREYER: No, they went across the 23 street.

24 MR. MERTZ: Some of them did. Some went 25 down --

1 JUSTICE BREYER: Was there any -- there was 2 no requirement, they didn't have to go across the street
3 or stay on campus, they could wander off distantly.

4 MR. MERTZ: They could, and many of them
5 did.

6 JUSTICE BREYER: Okay.

7 MR. MERTZ: And there was no requirement
8 that they stay together, no requirement that they do 9 anything in particular. They --

10 JUSTICE SCALIA: I had to watch -- not even 11 watch the parade, no requirement they watch the parade?
12 They were released in order to watch the parade.

13 MR. MERTZ: That was the intent, obviously, 14 for those released.

15 JUSTICE SCALIA: The intent, it was the 16 direction.

17 MR. MERTZ: But --

18 JUSTICE SCALIA: It was not only the intent, 19 it was the direction.

20 MR. MERTZ: Actually it was not. According 21 to these student affidavits, they were simply released 22 and said, you can go watch --

23 JUSTICE GINSBURG: Was there any fact
24 finding on that? You referred to affidavits.

25 MR. MERTZ: No. It was decided on cross

1 motions for summary judgment in the district court, and 2 there were no findings, actually no factual findings at 3 all, and certainly nothing on that particular point.

4 JUSTICE BREYER: Can I ask you another
5 record point, just so I know where to look?

6 MR. MERTZ: Yes.

7 JUSTICE BREYER: You've also asked for an 8 injunction that would require expunging his 5-day 9 suspension from his record.

10 MR. MERTZ: Correct.

11 JUSTICE BREYER: 10 days. Well, 10 or 5, 12 unclear. I noticed the superintendent of schools on 13 page 66A when he's reviewing this, what he says is, 14 "Joseph contends that all his behavior is excusable 15 because he was exercising his free of speech right.
16 Even if I were to concede his speech across from the 17 high school is protected, which I do not, the rest of 18 his behavior warranted the suspension." And then he 19 says, "And I'm cutting it from 10 days to 5. So given 20 that, if you win, suppose you were to win, and you -- 21 that it is protected and so forth -- then would you 22 concede or not concede the suspension, the 5 days, it's 23 over, it still stands, I don't care about the 24 expungement or not?

25 MR. MERTZ: The -- whether it remains on the

1 record, anything that remains on his record is obviously 2 much more --

3 JUSTICE BREYER: No, but I'm asking that you
4 think about it. I'm putting you on the spot.

5 MR. MERTZ: In that case, I missed the point 6 of your --

7 JUSTICE BREYER: I want to know what the 8 superintendent said. As I read it is, he says, look, I
9 don't care if this was protected or not. I'll give you 10 that. It's protected. But the rest of his behavior, 11 the way he treated the principal, what he did, the 12 reluctance, et cetera, et cetera, that warrants a 13 suspension too, and I'm cutting it from 10 days to 5.
14 So it sounds to me as I read it that the teacher is 15 saying even if you're right, he's still suspended for 5
16 days. That's what the superintendent says.

17 Now suppose you win your point that you're 18 interested in winning, which you may not or you may.
19 Are you still then going to pursue this case on the 5 20 days, that that should be erased?

21 MR. MERTZ: If the only thing left were 22 discipline because he was tardy that day, was -- didn't 23 divulge the names of the other people holding the 24 banner, that sort of thing, we couldn't --

25 CHIEF JUSTICE ROBERTS: I think it's --

1 JUSTICE BREYER: You couldn't what? I
2 didn't hear the last part of what you said. You just 3 got to the point of --

4 MR. MERTZ: Of answering the question.

5 JUSTICE BREYER: Yes. What's the answer?

6 MR. MERTZ: Those things wouldn't manner 7 anymore.

8 JUSTICE BREYER: So you would not pursue it?

9 MR. MERTZ: Correct.

10 CHIEF JUSTICE ROBERTS: Can we get back -- 11 I'm sorry.

12 JUSTICE SCALIA: Go ahead.

13 CHIEF JUSTICE ROBERTS: Can we get back to 14 what the case is about. You think the law was so 15 clearly established when this happened that the 16 principal, that the instant that the banner was 17 unfurled, snowballs are flying around, the torch is 18 coming, should have said oh, I remember under Tinker I 19 can only take the sign down if it's disruptive. But 20 then under Frazier I can do something if it interferes 21 with the basic mission, and under Kuhlmeier I've got 22 this other thing. So she should have known at that 23 point that she could not take the banner down, and it 24 was so clear that she should have to pay out of her own 25 pocket because of it.

1 MR. MERTZ: Mr. Chief Justice, there are two 2 different time points we have to talk about. There's 3 the heat of the moment out there on the street, but then 4 later back in the office when she actually decided to 5 levy the punishment after she had talked to him, after 6 she heard why he did it and why he didn't do it, after 7 she had had a chance to consult with the school 8 district's counsel. At that point in the calmness of 9 her office, then she should indeed have known it. And 10 she did testify that she had taken a master's degree 11 course in school law in which she studied Kuhlmeier and 12 Frazier and Tinker. So --

13 CHIEF JUSTICE ROBERTS: And so it should be 14 perfectly clear to her exactly what she could and 15 couldn't do.

16 MR. MERTZ: Yes.

17 JUSTICE SCALIA: As it is to us, right?

18 (Laughter.)

19 JUSTICE SOUTER: I mean, we have had a
20 debate here for going on 50 minutes about what Tinker 21 means, about the proper characterization of the 22 behavior, the nonspeech behavior. The school's terms in 23 dealing with the kids that morning. The meaning of the, 24 of the statement. We've been debating this in this 25 courtroom for going on an hour, and it seems to me

1 however you come out, there is reasonable debate.

2 Should the teacher have known, even in the, in the calm 3 deliberative atmosphere of the school later, what the 4 correct answer is?

5 MR. MERTZ: We believe at the very least she 6 should have known that one cannot punish a nondisruptive
7 holding of a sign because it said something you 8 disagreed with.

9 JUSTICE KENNEDY: Of course I disagree with 10 the characterization on disruptive. It was completely 11 disruptive of the message, of the theme that the school
12 wanted to promote. Completely disruptive of the reason 13 for letting the students out to begin with. Completely 14 disruptive of the school's image that they wanted to 15 portray in sponsoring the Olympics.

16 MR. MERTZ: Well, they weren't sponsoring
17 the Olympics, they weren't even sponsoring this event 18 actually. They simply let the students out to watch it.
19 That was --

20 JUSTICE KENNEDY: Some of the students were 21 carrying the torch and the band was playing in the 22 parade.

23 MR. MERTZ: A few of the student -- a few of 24 the relay runners were from the school and had been 25 allowed to skip school because of that, and the pep band

1 played as it went by. I do not believe that made the 2 torch relay a school event. The best that can be said 3 for them is that they let the students watch it with the 4 concurrence of individual teachers, and that that 5 attendance was a school sanctioned attendance. Now 6 whether that allows them to then engage in this kind of 7 punishment for speech by a student who was not even 8 among those released, who is standing --

9 JUSTICE GINSBURG: Now you said that in your 10 brief, and I couldn't understand that somehow you got 11 mileage out of his being truant that morning. Would the 12 case have come out differently, would you be making any 13 different argument if he got to school on time and was 14 released with the rest of them? Does the case turn on 15 the fact that he was late to school that day?

16 MR. MERTZ: We believe it would be a closer 17 question, but the fact that he was not there in school 18 today, and intentionally was not there today, turns this 19 into a pure free speech case where you have a citizen in 20 a public place in a public event who was not acting as a 21 student.

22 JUSTICE GINSBURG: So he's not a school
23 child, he would be playing hooky?

24 MR. MERTZ: Because he was playing hooky
25 because he chose not to be there, because he was not

1 part of the class.

2 JUSTICE GINSBURG: Even though the law
3 required him to be there?

4 MR. MERTZ: That's right.

5 JUSTICE SCALIA: He wasn't playing hooky.
6 He showed up late, that's all, right? I mean, he 7 actually came and joined his classmates at an event that 8 he knew was an event that the school told the classes to 9 go to.

10 MR. MERTZ: He joined --

11 JUSTICE SCALIA: As far as I'm concerned, he 12 just showed up late.

13 MR. MERTZ: He joined a public crowd on a 14 private side -- public sidewalk in front of private 15 homes. The crowd happened to have some other students 16 in that school there.

17 JUSTICE GINSBURG: Where did he go
18 immediately after? He went to the school building for 19 whatever it was, the third period of the day.

20 MR. MERTZ: Yes. The principal instructed 21 him to do so and he did.

22 JUSTICE KENNEDY: So under your view, if the 23 principal sees something wrong in the crowd across the 24 street, had to come up and say now, how many here are 25 truants and how many here are -- I can't discipline you

1 because you're a truant, you can go ahead and throw the 2 bottle.

3 (Laughter.)

4 MR. MERTZ: No, I don't think she needs to 5 do that in the heat of the moment. But later on once 6 she's discovered the true facts, then at that point I 7 think she loses a basis for punishing him as a student 8 if he was not there as a student.

9 JUSTICE SCALIA: Because you're both a 10 truant and disrupter, you get off.

11 (Laughter.)

12 JUSTICE SCALIA: Had you been just a 13 disrupter, tough luck.

14 MR. MERTZ: Well, it may well be that he 15 could have been punished for being truant, but of course 16 that's not why we're here. He was punished for 17 displaying, for the content of the sign he was 18 displaying in a public place as a private citizen.

19 JUSTICE SCALIA: Who were the people that 20 helped him hold up his flag? Were they not classmates 21 of his?

22 MR. MERTZ: Most of them were classmates; at 23 least one was not a student.

24 JUSTICE SCALIA: Did he not know that these 25 classmates were there at a public event that was

1 sponsored, not sponsored, but to which the school had 2 directed the students to go?

3 MR. MERTZ: I'm sure he did know.

4 JUSTICE SCALIA: So it seems to me it's like 5 joining a school trip at the zoo, you know. You -- you 6 don't make it to the -- to the school, but you drive 7 there yourself and then join the class as it's going 8 through the zoo. It seems to me he's in school.

9 MR. MERTZ: A better analogy might be if he 10 had gone on his own time to the zoo and was engaging in 11 some expressive act, and there happened to be a school 12 group there at the same time, could the teacher with 13 that group then have disciplined him for what he was 14 doing?

15 CHIEF JUSTICE ROBERTS: That gets back to 16 the point I was trying to make earlier. He came here 17 because it was the school event, the school sponsored 18 activity. He could have gone anywhere along the route.
19 He knew that it was coming by the school, he knew that 20 they were going to be, the students were going to be 21 released to see it. He went to join up with the school 22 even if he were truant that day.

23 MR. MERTZ: No, Your Honor. I believe 24 that's incorrect. There is nothing in the record that 25 even suggests that he went there in order to join up

1 with schoolmates or in order to be near the school. He 2 says, in fact, he intentionally tried to avoid the 3 school because he thought that that way he could avoid 4 the school jurisdiction for his --

5 JUSTICE SCALIA: You think he could have 6 been marked absent for the whole day because he didn't 7 intend to be part of the school group afterwards? I
8 mean, suppose there's a suspension of so much for half a 9 day truancy, and so much more for a whole day's truancy.
10 And he shows up and he says, oh, you can't -- you have 11 to hold me for a whole day's truancy because I didn't 12 intend to be in school. I was in school but I didn't 13 intend to be there.

14 MR. MERTZ: I think it would all depend on 15 whether he --

16 JUSTICE SCALIA: That doesn't make any sense 17 to me. Does it depend on his intent, whether or not he 18 intended to be a truant that afternoon?

19 MR. MERTZ: I think that would depend on the 20 fact of whether he was a truant that afternoon.

21 JUSTICE SCALIA: He was either in school or 22 he wasn't in school.

23 MR. MERTZ: In the morning he wasn't in 24 school.

25 JUSTICE SCALIA: In the afternoon he either

1 was or he wasn't.

2 MR. MERTZ: In the afternoon he was.

3 JUSTICE SCALIA: And the question is whether 4 joining the school group, intentionally joining the 5 school group, going there because the school group was 6 there, whether that places him in school.

7 MR. MERTZ: As a hypothetical, if he were 8 intentionally joining a school group, I would have to 9 say that puts him within whatever jurisdiction the 10 school has.

11 JUSTICE BREYER: Why does it matter? That 12 is, why doesn't the -- you're suing the teacher or the 13 principal and why wouldn't the issue be what that 14 principal really reasonably thought the situation was?
15 I mean, if a principal reasonably thought he was part of 16 the school group, if the principal reasonably thought 17 that this was a school outing, if the principal 18 reasonably thought that students are staying together, 19 why wouldn't that just be the ground on which you'd take 20 the case, we should take it that way, because the 21 principal reasonably thinks?

22 MR. MERTZ: As far as qualified immunity, I
23 think that's correct, if she had a reasonable belief.

24 JUSTICE BREYER: But even on the merits?

25 MR. MERTZ: On the merits I don't think so,

1 because if he was not in fact there as part of a school
2 group --

3 JUSTICE BREYER: Even if the principal 4 couldn't tell him to take down the manner even if she 5 thought he was part of the school group reasonably, if 6 he really wasn't?

7 MR. MERTZ: I do not believe there's 8 anything in the law that allows a principal to convert a 9 pure free speech exercise into a school exercise because 10 it's --

11 JUSTICE SCALIA: I thought you were going to 12 appeal to the calm of her office the next day. I 13 thought that was going to be your answer to my question.
14 Whatever she thought at the time, she didn't think it 15 later.

16 JUSTICE GINSBURG: May I ask to you clarify
17 one thing. I initiated this line of questioning when I 18 said I was surprised that your brief made such a big 19 deal that he was late to school. You would still be 20 making the argument about the free speech right if he 21 had diligently showed up for his math class first period 22 in the morning, gone out with the others, and had his 23 banner to unfurl when the torch came by?

24 MR. MERTZ: That is correct. We have two 25 independent bases for defending him here. One is the 1 pure free speech in a public place argument. That's the 2 one that hinges on the fact that he was not among the 3 released students. The other argument, which we believe 4 in equally, is that even if it were a on-campus or on an 5 extension of campus like a field trip, then under Tinker 6 because it was not disruptive they cannot punish it.

7 My time is up. I thank the Court.

8 CHIEF JUSTICE ROBERTS: Thank you,
9 Mr. Mertz.

10 Mr. Starr, you have a minute remaining.

11 REBUTTAL ARGUMENT OF KENNETH W. STARR

12 ON BEHALF OF PETITIONERS

13 MR. STARR: For the reasons that have been 14 discussed, under no circumstances should Deborah Morse, 15 a conscientious principal, be subjected to the 16 possibility of punitive damages or compensatory damages.

17 A very brief factual point. In light of the 18 richness of the discussion with respect to the facts, I 19 would guide the Court to page 109 of the joint appendix.
20 This is Deborah Morse's interrogatory answer and there 21 she sets forth the facts, and that bleeds into the law.

22 To promote drugs -- and this is our 23 fundamental suggestion and submission. To promote drugs 24 is utterly inconsistent with the basic educational 25 mission of the school, and for this Court to suggest to

1 the contrary would really be quite inconsistent with 2 much of its drug jurisprudence, Bernonia and Earls. The 3 opinion of the Court in Earls 2002 is especially 4 powerful with respect to the scourge of drugs and their 5 dangers.

6 More broadly, the Court does not need to go 7 more broadly, but the Court has spoken more broadly with 8 respect to the need to defer to school officials in 9 identifying the educational mission. But we know that 10 there are in fact constitutional limits. Those limits
11 are captured in Tinker. A passive pure political speech 12 that reflects on the part of the school board a 13 standardless discretionary effort to squelch any kind of 14 controversial discussion, that casts a pall of orthodoxy 15 over the classroom. We are light years away from that.

16 I thank the Court.

17 CHIEF JUSTICE ROBERTS: Thank you counsel,
18 the case is submitted.

19 (Whereupon, at 11:04 a.m., the case in the 20 above-entitled matter was submitted.)
